FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1913

So much happiness falls to every man as he possesses virtue and wisdom and also acts according to their dictates.—Aristotle.

WELCOME THEM!

They will be here in a bunch tomorrow—people from all over the territory, delegates to the civic convention, their wives, families and sweethearts.

Give them a rousing welcome when they land in Honolulu and keep it up until they have gone! Tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock the Manna Kea will arrive from Hawaii and Maui, bringing more than a hundred businessmen here to join with Honolulu in an inter-community movement that promises to be one of the finest things that ever happened in these islands.

Honolulu should be down at the Mauna Kea wharf in force to meet the visitors. Give them a hearty handshake, tell them you're glad they have come and hope they will come oftener.

Loosen up!

Yell—if you feel that way.

Hawaii must pull together mightily for the next few years—pull as the rowing crews will be pulling tomorrow.

Friends pull together; strangers don't.

The territory ought to be one big community of friends.

Tomorrow is an opportunity to extend this circle of friendship. Let's see if Honolulu can jam Mauna Kea wharf, foot of Nuuanu street, with friends gathered to meet the visitors from the other islands.

HOW CALIFORNIA DOES IT

Hawaii should spend double its present appropriation for promotion work. Promotion pays; it makes dividends not for a favored few, but for every business, large and small, in the territory.

The Oakland Chamber of Commerce, an organization whose highest ideal is to serve the community rather than private interests, says this in a recent bulletin:

There is nothing mysterious about the reason why Southern California gets the bulk of tourist travel and induces the investment of millions of outside money.

It is simply because of persistent advertising, as indicated by the fact that seven counties of Southern California are yearly spending from $125,000 to $150,000 a year in community advertising.

Oakland and Central California can get this business, if they will pay the price.

Hawaii can get this business, too, if Hawaii will pay the price. With a free sugar bill now practically certain to pass Congress, Hawaii should go after the tourist business just as energetically and as scientifically as Hawaii has been going after record sugar yields.

WILSON A DIPLOMAT

The Daily Commercial News of San Francisco is quite evidently no admirer of President Wilson and his secretary of state. The News has discovered that diplomatic Europe is grinning at the United States because of Uncle Sam's recent international utterances. Referring to "The Mexican Muddle" the San Francisco financial organ says:

The detailing of a special ambassador to mediate between a government and various bands of robbers within its borders, with a view to stopping the footers and to conciliate the government in question with the robbers is something new.

To send a special envoy to advise a fourth secretary of an embassy that is not an embassy to advise with the government of Mexico as to how it can get rid of a president who is not pleasing to the Princeton professor now at the head of our government, is something uncanny.

And Europe grins, South America laughs, Japan guffaws, while Africa holds its sides. The International Clown is at his best!

This San Francisco paper seems unable to understand that President Wilson is accomplishing a great deal by his frank refusal to intervene in Mexico. It seems equally unable to appreciate any diplomatic statement that is not couched in the most indirect and subtle of language. Possibly it is incensed because Wilson talks in a rather matter-of-fact and straightforward way about questions that Talleyrand would have approached with infinite caution and care to conceal his real intent.

Bryan's diplomacy has not yet been shown. But, judging from the comment of the American press, friendly or unfriendly to the Democratic administration, the caliber of Wilson's diplomacy is large. It may not be dollar-marked, but it seems to please a good many million American people.

LUMPS OF SUGAR

St. Louis (Mo.) Globe-Democrat: "Judging from what has happened to coffee after all duty upon it was abolished our sugar bill (under free sugar) would be higher than now."

Pittsburg (Pa.) Chronicle: "This pretended measure in the interest of the people is in reality a move to swell the profits of the sugar-refining monopoly."

San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle: "The temporary gain to the consumer will be so slight that he will not feel it, but the blow to the industry will be a stunning one, and when its full effect is realized it will be seen that sugar, instead of being cheapened, has been made dearer by putting the United States out of the race."

Independence (Kas.) Reporter: "From 1900 to 1910, when all foodstuffs increased in price on an average of 37.7 per cent, the price of sugar decreased 7 per cent and sugar was the only food excepting raisins and molasses that did not increase in price. Beet sugar, as a competitor in the home markets, prevented the seaboard refiners from advancing the price of sugar."

Battle Creek (Mich.) Enquirer: "The bill has been forced through the party caucus as a party measure. After that, nothing matters. Information is not wanted. The political machine is in motion. The party caucus has been lined up for the bill. Therefore, who wants facts?"

Ogden City (Utah) Standard: "The men who are familiar with the far-reaching agricultural benefits bestowed by the sugar beet industry in Europe realize if the president and the leaders of congress do not, that in destroying the American beet sugar industry one of the most important agencies for the improvement of the crop yields of the United States will be lost."

New York (N. Y.) Commercial Bulletin: "The sugar duty being a prolific source of revenue and so widely diffused as to make no perceptible difference with the price to the consumer we have never seen any sufficient reason for materially reducing it for three years and then removing it altogether. If it should result in a substantial reduction in the domestic supply it might even increase the price."

Hawaii's promotion interests in San Francisco should be well-cared-for in the hands of Albert P. Taylor, and the Promotion Committee has made a wise choice in selecting this experienced and energetic newspaperman to represent it for the next two years in a city that offers a wide field of activity. Mr. Taylor is one of the veteran newsmen of the islands in point of service, knows conditions here thoroughly and is well-equipped in ability and personality to meet tourists from all over the world and convince them of the attractions of Hawaii. He has the best wishes of the Star-Bulletin and of the press of the territory generally.

That advance guard from the Big Island gives proof that Hawaii will be distinctly "on the job" throughout the civic convention.

The report that local Democrats have asked for a police guard at their harmony meeting tonight is probably exaggerated.

Judging from the noise these days, there are big guns around Honolulu other than Mayor Fern.

Josh Tucker will do well if he carries his famous smile through all these homestead troubles.

One of the main things for the civic conventionists to remember is to act unconventionally.

What has become of Huerta's special envoy to President Wilson? Is he lost in the shuffle?

The man with a yell in his system has an opportunity tomorrow to get it out.

Celebration without decoration is Hamlet without the melancholy Dane.

Theodore wants to fight again. So did Ad Wolgast et al.

It's up to the weather man tomorrow.

arranged at the Channel wharf, which has been scrubbed clean, provided with seats, and given fire and police protection. This wharf is open to the general public, as are all the wharves. The boat-clubs issue invitations and badges.

Alakea wharf, usually a vantage spot, will probably not be a good place from which to view tomorrow's events, as the Kinau, carrying the civic convention delegates, and the Mauna Loa, carrying the Honolulu Ad Club and guests, will be moored across the front of the wharf.

There will be scores of craft, large and small, on the water, lining the course. The customs authorities have been asked to assist the regatta officials in keeping the racing course clear and in preventing large steamers or motorboats from raising waves that will interfere with the low-lying racing barges.

At the Healan boat-house the following committee will be in charge of the reception and care of guests: H. Lemke, L. M. Hale, Geo. E. Gall, A. K. Clymer, W. T. McGeorge.

The committee which will receive at the Myrtle club-house is as follows: J. H. Hutchings, P. G. Jopson, W. A. Andersen, John Searle, W. McAllister.

The same committees are in joint charge of the Regatta dance, which takes place tomorrow evening in the Young Hotel pavilions. For the dance Kaala's double glee club has been engaged. The decorations will be completed tomorrow afternoon. The sale of tickets has been large and a big attendance is expected. Tickets may be secured from members of either club or at the door on the night of the dance.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

—A. E. LARIMER: The Y. M. C. A. employment committee is doing splendid work in finding out where all the jobs are. When the Honolulu businessmen take a proposition in hand, there is generally something doing.

—PAUL SUPER: The Y. M. C. A.'s activities are about two months ahead of other years at this time, and the fall work is beginning with a bang. The man who outlined our advertising is the fellow who put the "us" in "rush."

THE BUG HUNTERS.

Oh, they chase the wary skeeter to his lair,
And they slay him by the million then
And there,
And the chigger and the gnat
And the young domestic rat
Well, they just exterminate 'em every-where!

Oh, they fill the stagnant marshes full of oil,
And the peace of the tarantula they spoil,
And they go around and make
Life unpleasant for the snake
Who so often in our boudoirs used to coil.

And they enter in the native's humble cot,
And they scrub and fumigate him on the spot;
For though picturesque, perhaps,
As are other native chaps,
Is the Spiggoty hygienic? He is not!

Yes, the sanitary people lead a life
Which is fifty-nine varieties of strife,
For they deal with white and brown
In the jungle and the town,
And with Mistah Cullud Person—and his wife!

So we boost for Colonel Gorgas and his crew,
Who have blotted yellow fever out of view;
Who have changed a deadly port
To a blooming health resort,
Which is something people said they couldn't do.

—Berton Braloy in Popular Magazine.

A proposal that the Rapid Transit company run an owl car in Honolulu for the benefit of after-theater parties after 11:30 o'clock is regarded by Manager Ballentyne as being inadvisable. Ballentyne says that the fast car departure from town has been gradually advanced, and that there are very few passengers after 11 o'clock, and that he does not see how the company can put on extra cars for a late theater supper service.

PHYSICAL WORK FOR Y. W. C. A. OUTLINED

The work of the physical training department of the local Young Women's Christian Association will begin October 1, and until that time the physical directors, Miss Margaret Christy Tupper, will be in her office in the Boston building to confer with all those young women who wish to join classes in gymnasium work, swimming, tennis, basketball and first-aid-to-the-injured.

Following is the complete schedule for the fall work:

Tuesday.

Saturday.

Swimming—2:00 to 3:00 p. m., advanced classes. 3:00 to 4:00 p. m., elementary classes. 4:00 to 5:00 p. m., juniors.

Tennis—7:00 to 8:00 and 8:00 to 9:00 p. m.

The prices for these classes are as follows: gymnasium, 12 hours, $2.50; gymnasium, 25 hours, $4.50; junior gymnasium, 12 hours, $1.50; swimming, 12 hours, $1.00; tennis, 12 hours, $1.50; basketball, fifty cents; first aid course, $1.00.

The gymnasium work will take place in the Castle kindergarten, King street and on the lawn of the Homestead. The swimming instruction will be given at the Castle tanks, Waikiki. These tanks have recently been renovated and will be of even more service than last year. The basketball field adjoins the Homestead grounds, and the class in first aid will meet at the Homestead.

"There are no reasons why many more women should not reap the benefits offered by the Y. W. C. A. this year," said Miss Tupper this morning. "The development of ease, grace and strength, and the recreation of body, mind and spirit."

Personal Mention

WILFRED HUMPHRIES, a graduate of the Y. M. C. A. training school at Springfield, Mass., is soon to arrive in Honolulu to take the position of special director of boys' work for the Palama Settlement. He will also act in the capacity of assistant to the headworker of the settlement.

DR. J. S. B. PRATT returned this morning from a several days' trip of inspection to Molokai and Lahaina, Maui. He reports the board of leprosy examiners this week examined twenty-three members of the settlement, finding two to be not lepers and four others so much improved that paroles were recommended.

A. G. SMITH, assistant attorney general, is preparing to bring proceedings in court for condemnation of a strip of land on Front street, Hilo, owned by T. K. Lalakea and for which he refuses to accept a price of $1 a square foot. The tract is needed to continue the plan of widening Front street.

Small Edna noticed that her mother's hands were chapped, and exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, just look! You are all wearing out!"
